The BBC and the Public Barrie Gunter, 2024-10-23 This book examines the relationship between the public and the BBC in terms of public use of the BBC and their attitudes towards it These audience research measures are being used as metrics to assess the value of the BBC to the UK public Some of the attitudinal measures address perceptions of the BBC's outputs and some examine public views about the way the BBC is funded and managed The book has been written at a time when the BBC reached its centenary and also the mid point of its latest Royal Charter period At the time of writing the government had begun a mid term review of its performance as judged by its attainment of objectives set out in that Charter The Secretary of State for Digital Culture Media and Sport at the time of the mid term review had spoken and written openly about abolishing the TV licence fee and the introduction of a new funding model for the BBC that would be implemented in its new Royal Charter due to be enacted in 2027 Against this backdrop this book examines public opinion about the funding of the BBC and then looks at changing media consumption habits and how these have affected patronage of the BBC's outputs Ultimately a decision must be taken about the kind of national broadcaster the UK both its government and its citizens would like to keep in the future Changing the funding model without first defining what the BBC should do and how it should be structured and resourced to do it could result in a messy solution that satisfies and benefits no one From Data To Profit Vin

Divine Programming Charlotte E. Howell, 2020 From the mid 90s to the present television drama with religious content has come to reflect the growing cultural divide between white middle America and concentrated urban elites As author Charlotte E Howell argues in this book by 2016 television narratives of white Christianity had become entirely disconnected from the religion they were meant to represent Programming labeled family friendly became a euphemism for white middlebrow America and developing audience niches became increasingly significant to serial dramatic television Utilizing original case studies and interviews Divine Programming investigates the development writing producing marketing and positioning of key series including 7th Heaven Friday Night Lights Rectify Supernatural Jane the Virgin Daredevil and Preacher As this book shows there has historically been a deep ambivalence among television production cultures regarding religion and Christianity more specifically It illustrates how middle American television audiences lost significance within the Hollywood television industry and how this in turn has informed and continues to inform television programming on a larger scale In recent years upscale audience niches have aligned with the perceived tastes of affluent educated multicultural and importantly secular elites As a result the televised representation of white Christianity had to be othered and shifted into the unreality of fantastic genres to appeal to niche audiences To examine this effect Howell looks at religious representation through four approaches establishment distancing displacement and use and looks at series across a variety of genres and outlets in order to provide varied analyses of each theme
