

Interpretation: Although the map is somewhat difficult to read, there is a legend in the bottom right corner that allows us to interpret the information. It is a map of the world showing the distribution of the world's population. The map is a choropleth map, meaning that the colors represent different levels of population density. The legend indicates that the colors represent different levels of population density, with darker colors representing higher density and lighter colors representing lower density. The map shows that the highest population densities are found in the eastern half of the world, particularly in Asia and Europe. The lowest population densities are found in the western half of the world, particularly in North and South America.
