A Sense Of Place Teaching Children About The Environment With Picture S:

Assessing Schools for Generation R (Responsibility) Michael P. Mueller, Deborah J. Tippins, Arthur J. Stewart, 2013-07-17 Today's youth will face global environmental changes as well as complex personal and social challenges. To address these issues, this collection of essays provides vital insights on how science education can be designed to better engage students and help them solve important problems in the world around them. Assessing Schools for Generation R Responsibility includes theories, research, and practices for envisioning how science and environmental education can promote personal, social, and civic responsibility. It brings together inspiring stories, creative practices, and theoretical work to make the case that science education can be reformed so that students learn to meaningfully apply the concepts they learn in science classes across America and grow into civically engaged citizens. The book calls for a curriculum that equips students with the knowledge, skills, attitudes, and values to confront the complex and often ill-defined socioscientific issues of daily life. The authors are all experienced educators and top experts in the fields of science and environmental education, ecology, experiential education, educational philosophy, policy, and history. They examine what has to happen in the domains of teacher preparation and public education to effect a transition of the youth of America. This exciting, informative, sophisticated, and sometimes provocative book will stimulate much debate about the future direction of science education in America and the rest of the world. It is ideal reading for all school superintendents, deans, faculty, and policymakers looking for a way to implement a curriculum that helps build students into responsible and engaged citizens. Resources in Education, 2000

ENC Focus, 2001 A Sense of Place Annie Davy, 2019-02-07 Tried and tested accessible strategies that support the wellbeing and learning journey of children through mindfulness with a focus on learning outdoors and connecting with the world. Being outside and connecting with nature is key to young children's learning and wellbeing, especially in a busy, fast-changing, and digitalised world. Outdoors, children can more easily connect to their bodies and learn about themselves and others and how to be in the world. They use their senses to explore, understand, and become mindful of the earth and the people around them. But how can Early Years practitioners best support young children as they engage with nature while also passing on the values about the future of the planet? A Sense of Place is an easily accessible guide that will make outdoor learning more interesting and fun while also supporting children's development of resilience and resourcefulness so that they can survive and thrive in the world as they grow. Learning Primary Geography Susan Pike, 2015-12-22 Learning Primary Geography Ideas and inspiration from classrooms celebrates children's learning in primary geography. It is a book for all student and practising teachers who would like children to learn about their world in an enjoyable and stimulating way. Every page presents inspiring examples of children's learning and explains how and why creative approaches such as enquiry learning, learning outside the classroom, and using imaginative resources work so well in primary geography. Using illustrated case studies from a range of schools and classrooms, each chapter showcases the fantastic work all children can do in primary geography The book explores a wide variety of geographical learning with chapters focusing on key aspects of the subject including primary geography through the school grounds topical geography through issues and events learning about places in primary geography children s agency and action through primary geography Throughout the chapters the role of primary geography in helping children develop all types of literacies including spatial critical and digital literacies is explored Written by a highly experienced teacher and lecturer in education Learning Primary Geography is underpinned and illustrated by examples from a wide range of primary classrooms It will be a source of support guidance and inspiration for all those teaching geography in the primary school
