Growing God's Family Samuel L. Perry, 2017-06-13 Illustrates the hidden challenges embedded within the evangelical adoption movement For over a decade prominent leaders and organizations among American Evangelicals have spent a substantial amount of time and money in an effort to address what they believe to be the Orphan Crisis of the United States Yet despite an expansive commitment of resources there is no reliable evidence that these efforts have been successful Adoptions are declining across the board and both foster parenting and foster adoptions remain steady Why have evangelical mobilization efforts been so ineffective To answer this question Samuel L Perry draws on interviews with over 220 movement leaders and grassroots families as well as national data on adoption and fostering to show that the problem goes beyond orphan care Perry argues that evangelical social engagement is fundamentally self limiting and difficult to sustain because their subcultural commitments lock them into an approach that does not work on a practical level Growing God's Family ultimately reveals this peculiar irony within American evangelicalism by exposing how certain aspects of the evangelical subculture may stimulate activism to address social problems even while these same subcultural characteristics undermine their own strategic effectiveness It provides the most recent analysis of dominant elements within the evangelical subculture and how that subculture shapes the engagement strategies of evangelicals as a group Loved Baby Sarah about 20 billion a year in grants to states for highways; most of the money is raised through taxes on motor fuels. This study reviews several approaches to augment traditional sources of funding for highways. The analysis covers changes in rules governing federal aid, state infrastructure banks, federal credit assistance and private sector financing of roads. Charts and tables. Local Authority Accounting Methods Hugh Coombs, J. Edwards, 2014-02-05 The book contains a collection of papers dealing with a range of controversial accounting issues which exercised the minds of local authority officials during the period 1909-1934 and the solutions embodied in the Accounts Boroughs and Metropolitan Boroughs Regulations 1930. The contributors to the debate were mainly local government officials and the items reproduced cover a wide range of matters such as the content of the abstract accounts, the need for standardization and an illuminating comparison of the nature and contents of municipal accounts with those of limited companies. A number of issues which received close attention from the literature during the early part of the present century were related to the growth of municipal trading undertakings, water, gas, tramways and electricity. The pricing of these services was a matter of considerable debate questions included whether these services should be priced to generate a profit break even or receive a subsidy from the rates The depreciation question and the related issues of loan periods and the need for a sinking fund receive some attention as do the growing concern of municipal debt
