Transmedial Narratology and Contemporary Media Culture Jan-Noël Thon, 2016-08-01 It has become something of a cliché within the field of narratology to assert the commercial aesthetic and sociocultural relevance of narrative representations but the fact remains that narratives are everywhere Whenever we read a novel or a comic watch a film or an episode of our favorite television series or play the latest video game we are likely to engage with narrative media Similarly the intermedial adaptations and transmedial entertainment franchises that have become increasingly visible during the past few decades are at their core narrative forms Since a significant part of contemporary media culture is defined by the narratives we tell each other via various media the media studies discipline needs a genuinely transmedial narratology Transmedial Narratology and Contemporary Media Culture focuses on the intersubjective construction of storyworlds as well as on prototypical forms of narratorial and subjective representation It provides not only a method for the analysis of salient transmedial strategies of narrative representation in contemporary films comics and video games but also a theoretical frame within which medium specific approaches from literary and film narratology from comics studies and game studies and from various other strands of media and cultural studies may be employed to further our understanding of narratives across media

Authorship and the Rise of Self-Publishing Timothy Laquintano, 2016-10-15 In the last two decades digital technologies have made it possible for anyone with a computer and an Internet connection to rapidly and inexpensively self publish a book Once a stigmatized niche activity self publishing has grown explosively Hobbyists and professionals alike have produced millions of books circulating them through e readers and the web What does this new flood of books mean for publishing authors and readers Some lament the rise of self publishing because it tramples the gates and gatekeepers who once reserved publication for those who met professional standards Others tout authors new freedom from the narrow minded exclusivity of traditional publishing Critics mourn the death of the author fans celebrate the democratization of authorship Drawing on eight years of research and interviews with more than eighty self published writers Mass Authorship avoids the polemics instead showing how writers are actually thinking about and dealing with this brave new world Timothy Laquintano compares the experiences of self publishing authors in three distinct genres poker strategy guides memoirs and romance novels as well as those of writers whose self published works hit major bestseller lists He finds that the significance of self publishing and the challenge it presents to traditional publishing depend on the aims of authors the desires of their readers

the affordances of their platforms and the business plans of the companies that provide those platforms In drawing a nuanced portrait of self publishing authors today Laquintano answers some of the most pressing questions about what it means to publish in the twenty first century How do writers establish credibility in an environment with no editors to judge quality How do authors police their copyrights online without recourse to the law How do they experience Amazon as a publishing platform And how do they find an audience when it sometimes seems there are more writers than readers

Making Media Work Derek Johnson, Derek Kompare, Avi Santo, 2014-08 The management and labor culture of the entertainment industry In popular culture management in the media industry is frequently understood as the work of network executives studio developers and market researchers the suits who oppose the more productive forces of creative talent and subject that labor to the inefficiencies and risk aversion of bureaucratic hierarchies However such portrayals belie the reality of how media management operates as a culture of shifting discourses dispositions and tactics that create meaning generate value and shape media work throughout each moment of production and consumption Making Media Work aims to provide a deeper and more nuanced understanding of management within the entertainment industries Drawing from work in critical sociology and cultural studies the collection theorizes management as a pervasive yet flexible set of principles drawn upon by a wide range of practitioners artists talent scouts performers directors show runners and more in their ongoing efforts to articulate relationships and bridge potentially discordant forces within the media industries The contributors interrogate managerial labor and identity shine a light on how management understands its roles within cultural and creative contexts and reconfigure the complex relationship between labor and managerial authority as productive rather than solely prohibitive Engaging with primary evidence gathered through interviews archives and trade materials the essays offer tremendous insight into how management is understood and performed within media industry contexts The volume as a whole traces the changing roles of management both historically and in the contemporary moment within US and international contexts and across a range of media forms from film and television to video games and social media The Craft of Criticism Michael Kackman, Mary Celeste Kearney, 2025-08-19 With contributions from 35 leading media scholars this collection provides a comprehensive overview of the main methodologies of critical media studies Fully revised and updated throughout the chapters in this second edition address various methods of textual analysis as well as reception studies policy studies production studies and contextual multi method approaches like intertextuality and cultural geography Film and television are at the heart of the collection which also addresses digital technologies and new research tools in such areas as software studies gaming and social media Each chapter includes an intellectual history of a particular method or approach a discussion of why and how it was used to study a particular medium or media relevant examples of influential work in the area and an in depth review of a case study drawn from the author s own research Together the chapters in this collection give media scholars and critics a complete toolbox of essential critical media studies methodologies

Appreciating the Art of Television Ted Nannicelli, 2016-09-13 Contemporary television has been marked by such exceptional programming that it is now common to hear claims that TV has finally become an art In Appreciating the Art of Television Nannicelli contends that televisual art is not a recent development but has in fact existed for a long time Yet despite the flourishing of two relevant academic subfields the philosophy of film and television aesthetics there is little scholarship on television in general as an art form This book aims to provide scholars active in television aesthetics with a critical overview of the relevant philosophical literature while also giving philosophers of film a particular account of the art of television that will hopefully spur further interest and debate It offers the first sustained theoretical examination of what is involved in appreciating television as an art and how this bears on the practical business of television scholars critics students and fans namely the comprehension interpretation and evaluation of specific televisual artworks The Politics of Ephemeral Digital Media Sara Pesce, Paolo Noto, 2016-05-26 In the age of complex Tv of social networking and massive consumption of transmedia narratives a myriad short lived phenomena surround films and TV programs raising questions about the endurance of a fictional world and other mediatized discourse over a long arc of time The life of media products can change direction depending on the variability of paratextual materials and activities such as online commentaries and forums promos and trailers disposable merchandise and gadgets grassroots video production archives and gaming This book examines the tension between permanence and obsolescence in the production and experience of media byproducts analysing the affections and meanings they convey and uncovering the machineries of their persistence or disposal Paratexts which have long been considered only ancillary to a central text interfere instead with textual politics by influencing the viewers fidelity or infidelity to a product and affecting a fictional world s life expectancy Scholars in the fields of film studies media studies memory and cultural studies are here called to observe these byproducts temporalities their short form and or long temporal extension their nostalgic politics or future projections and assess their increasing influence on our use of the past and present on our temporal experience and consequently on our social and political self positioning through the media

Legal Stories Gregory Steirer, 2024-07-01 Tracing the emergence of what the media industries today call transmedia story worlds and narrative franchises Legal Stories provides a dual history of copyright law and narrative based media development between the Copyright Act of 1909 and the Copyright Act of 1976 Drawing on archival material including legal case files and employing the principles of actor network theory Gregory Steirer demonstrates how the meaning and form of narrative based property in the twentieth century was integral to the letter and practice of intellectual property law during this time Steirer's expansive view of intellectual property law encompasses not only statutes and judicial opinions but also the everyday practices and productions of authors editors fans and other legal laypersons The result is a history of the law as improvisatory and accident prone taking place as often outside the courtroom as inside and shaped as much by laypersons as lawyers Through the examination of influential legal disputes involving early properties such as Dashiell Hammett's Sam Spade H P Lovecraft's Cthulhu Mythos and Robert E Howard's Conan the Barbarian Steirer provides a ground's eye view of how copyright law has operated and evolved in practice

Constructions of Media Authorship Christiane Heibach, Angela Krewani, Irene Schütze, 2020-11-23 The author is dead long live the author This paradox has shaped discussions on authorship since at least the 1960s when the dominant notion of the individual author genius was first critically questioned The ongoing discussion has mainly focused on literature and the arts but has ignored nearly any artistic practice beyond these two fields Constructions of Media Authorship aims to fill this gap the volume's interdisciplinary contributions reflect historical and current artistic practices within various media and attempt to grasp them from different perspectives The first part sheds a new light on different artistic and design practices and questions the still dominant view on the individual identifiable author The second part discusses creative practices in literature emphasizing the interrelation of aesthetic discourses and media practices The third part investigates authoring in audiovisual media especially film and TV while the final part turns to electronic and digital media and their collective creativity and hybrid mediality The volume is also an attempt to develop new methodological approaches focusing on the interplay between various human and non human actors in different media constellations

The Palgrave Handbook of Media and Communication Research in Africa Bruce Mutsaers, 2018-03-22 This handbook attempts to fill the gap in empirical scholarship of media and communication research in Africa from an Africanist perspective The collection draws on expert knowledge of key media and communication scholars in Africa and the diaspora offering a counter narrative to existing Western and Eurocentric discourses of knowledge production As the decolonial turn takes centre stage across Africa this collection further rethinks media and communication research in a post colonial setting and provides empirical evidence as to why some of the methods conceptualised in Europe will not work in Africa The result is a thorough appraisal of the current threats challenges and opportunities facing the discipline on the continent

not Borg like assimilation machines but rather complicated ecosystems within which creative workers strive to create compelling shared worlds This finely researched breakthrough book is a must read for anyone seeking a sophisticated understanding of the contemporary media industry Heather Hendershot author of What's Fair on the Air Cold War Right Wing Broadcasting and the Public Interest While immediately recognizable throughout the U S and many other countries media mainstays like X Men Star Trek and Transformers achieved such familiarity through constant reincarnation In each case the initial success of a single product led to a long term embrace of media franchising a dynamic process in which media workers from different industrial positions shared in and reproduced familiar culture across television film comics games and merchandising In Media Franchising Derek Johnson examines the corporate culture behind these production practices as well as the collaborative and creative efforts involved in conceiving sustaining and sharing intellectual properties in media work worlds Challenging connotations of homogeneity Johnson shows how the cultural and industrial logic of franchising has encouraged media industries to reimagine creativity as an opportunity for exchange among producers licensees and even consumers Drawing on case studies and interviews with media producers he reveals the meaningful identities cultural hierarchies and struggles for distinction that accompany collaboration within these production networks Media Franchising provides a nuanced portrait of the collaborative cultural production embedded in both the media industries and our own daily lives

Contemporary Latina/o Media Arlene Dávila, Yeidy M. Rivero, 2014-09-12 The cultural politics creating and consuming Latina o mass media Just ten years ago discussions of Latina o media could be safely reduced to a handful of TV channels dominated by Univision and Telemundo Today dramatic changes in the global political economy have resulted in an unprecedented rise in major new media ventures for Latinos as everyone seems to want a piece of the Latino media market. While current scholarship on Latino media have mostly revolved around important issues of representation and stereotypes, this approach does not provide the entire story. In Contemporary Latino Media, Arlene D. Vila and Yeidy M. Rivero bring together an impressive range of leading scholars to move beyond analyses of media representations, going behind the scenes to explore issues of production, circulation, consumption, and political economy that affect Latino mass media. Working across the disciplines of Latino media, cultural studies, and communication, the contributors examine how Latinos are being affected both by the continued Latin Americanization of genres, products, and audiences, as well as by the whitewashing of mainstream Hollywood media where Latinos have been consistently bypassed. While focusing on Spanish language television and radio, the essays also touch on the state of Latinos in prime time television and in digital and alternative media. Using a transnational approach, the volume as a whole explores the ownership, importation, and circulation of talent and content from Latin America, placing the dynamics of the global political economy and cultural politics in the foreground of contemporary analysis of Latino media.

Transgenerational Media Industries Derek Johnson, 2019-11-12. Within corporate media industries, adults produce children's entertainment. Yet children, presumed to exist outside the professional adult world, make their own contributions to it, creating and posting unboxing videos, for example, that provide content for toy marketers. Many adults meanwhile avidly consume entertainment products nominally meant for children. Media industries reincorporate this market, disrupting participation into their strategies, even turning to adult consumers to pass fandom to the next generation. Derek Johnson presents an innovative perspective that looks beyond the simple category of kids media to consider how entertainment industry strategies invite producers and consumers alike to cross boundaries between adulthood and childhood, professional and amateur, new media and old. Revealing the social norms, reproductive ideals, and labor hierarchies on which such transformations depend, he identifies the lines of authority and power around which legacy media institutions like television, comics, and toys imagine their futures in a digital age. Johnson proposes that it is not strategies of media production but of media reproduction that are most essential in this context. To understand these critical intersections, he investigates transgenerational industry practice in television, co-viewing, recruitment of adult comic readers as youth outreach ambassadors, media professionals' identification with childhood, the branded management of adult fans of LEGO, and the labor of child YouTube video creators. These dynamic relationships may appear to disrupt generational and industry boundaries alike. However, by considering who media industries empower when generating the future in these reproductive terms and who they leave out, Johnson ultimately demonstrates how their strategies reinforce existing power structures. This book makes vital contributions to media studies in its fresh approach to the intersections of adulthood and childhood, its attention to the relationship between legacy and digital media industries, and its advancement of dialogue between media production and consumption researchers. It will interest scholars in media industry studies and across media studies more broadly.

broadly with particular appeal to those concerned about the current and future reach of media industries into our lives
